Pleasant Ridge Golfer Wins Women's Met Championship
Allison Schultz Outlasts 15 Golfers for Title, Credits Practice Time at Maketewah

CINCINNATI – July 30, 2010 – Pleasant Ridge resident and incoming University of Toledo sophomore, Allison Schultz, 18, won the 2010 Metropolitan Women's Amateur Championship. She advanced through three matches before competing in the fourth and final championship match at Clovernook Country Club on June 17.

Sixteen women from country clubs around the Cincinnati area competed in the match play-style tournament after a qualifying round.

Schultz, a member of Maketewah Country Club, has played golf since she was eight years old. Her father, Jack, credits her practice time at Maketewah for her success. He noted that the country club gave her ample access to the game and instilled in her a passion for golf that has helped her develop as an athlete. Schultz's father and her swing coaches at Maketewah, Don Gleason, Golf Professional Emeritus, and David Bahr, Head Golf Professional, have served as her primary mentors.

This was Schultz's first time competing in the Metropolitan Women's Amateur Championship. She is a member of the University of Toledo women's golf team.
